

@LIS, Alliance for the Information Society, is a cooperation programme with Latin America aiming to promote the information society and fight the digital divide throughout Latin America.

Adopted in 2001, the @LIS programme has a budget of EUR 77.5 millions of which EUR 63.5 millions will be financed by the European Commission. @LIS covers a wide spectrum of objectives aiming to create a long-term partnership between the two regions in the field of the Information Society. The programme focuses on the following activities: a dialogue on policy and regulatory aspects, the development of standards, the implementation of demonstration projects in favour of the civil society, a network of regulators and the interconnection of research centres.
